Library history

The current Library derives from the merger of the libraries of the former Institute of General Pathology, the former Department of Biochemistry and Biophysics and the former Department of Experimental Medicine. Since 2001 it has been located on the 2nd floor in the functional office of S. Andrea delle Dame.

Property

In recent years, in line with the change in purchasing policy, the library has strengthened the electronic publishing sector, through the acquisition of electronic databases, periodicals and texts, accessible through the University network, but even from home, through the proxy.

Despite this, we do not forget the value of paper texts, for which a constant increase in the exam texts is expected, in the latest edition requested by the teachers.

Biomedical sciences databases

- AccessMedicine McGraw-Hill
- Acland's Human Anatomy
- The Cochrane Library
- Cochrane Clinical Answers
- Embase
- Medical Encyclopedia

- MedDra (Medical Dictionary for Regulatory Activities)
- Medline Ovid
- Methods in Enzymology (dal 2012)

The texts in paper format, which can be found in the University catalog (Sebina), can be consulted locally, after registering access to the consultation room.

Document Delivery

The Library carries out a free Document Delivery service to all Unicompania users and to the libraries that provide this service on a free reciprocity basis.

The request must be made through the Nilde service (Network Inter-Library Document Exchange) to which users are invited to register, after completing and delivering, also via email, the registration form completed in its entirety and stamped and signed by a teacher.

Photocopies

Reproduction is permitted, for personal and study use only, in compliance with the rules on copyright and with the limitations necessary to ensure the conservation of the works.
